S&P 500 Reaches New Record Closing High But Dow Gives Back Ground

NEWS / FUNDAMENTALS
(Reuters)

Stocks turned in a relatively lackluster performance during trading on Tuesday, with the major averages bouncing back and forth across the unchanged after ending Monday's trading modestly higher. Despite the choppy trading, the S&P 500 reached a new record closing high.

Yesterday's Technical Review using WB's Emini Clock and Wyckoff's Tape Reading Principles

As the market opened up Globex gave us a hint that price was for the most part equally ballanced. Price held the close of the previous day. Globex was not taking any chances and held in a tight range around the close. As the 8'oclock numbers rolled around a bid rolled in.

On page three I mentioned: Pre Opening: Bulls seems to be getting a following to take price higher. Then just as the opening print price was moving down and looking to check the lows. Also on page three: Today: Potential to see yesterday's low tested to complete the seconday test.

And where did that test come in at? MID AM LOW. I made a video, I layed out minute by minute each price movement. This video outlines the S4H day Wedge Zoom. Also on page three: Shape of the day: Normal, Wedge Zoom, Link a Stink.

This was a classic Wedge Zoom. If you'd like to see the video, drop me an email. A Wedge Zoom is when the MID AM LOW zooms up to recover the highs near or just after the lunch SLOG. That's one option. The other is a Zoom up from the mid pm low.

If you were able to recognize this price movement you could have gotten long at the MID AM LOW and then added to your position at the mid pm low. Your exit would have been the LAST HOUR HIGH. It should not have come as a surprize that intraday high was at the 16:15 pm marker.

The tea leaves where their if you knew how to read them. When the trend is in WB's clock is your frined!

I'm just a regular guy; Not Silver spoon family or WALL Street / Chicago network or Financial Fast Track educational express super star golden boy, I have an Intimate knowledge of the insider mindset / how the insiders on Wall Street think act and position their trades.

I wrote my own charting program. I don't use indicators. Just judgment: interaction of Price, Volume and Time. I focus on the Intraday waves of the market and how they are timed to the "hidden clock" of the market. I look at the composite man the "insider" in terms of the market. Others look at bulls and bears (my strongest point)

I SEE THE MARKET IN TERMS OF THE COMPOSITE MAN / INSIDER – Most traders look at the market in terms of bulls and bears. This creates a dichotomy. A duality of the mind. Wyckoff looked at the market in terms of Composite Man / "insiders".

Overnight Geopolitical

ASIAN, (Reuters) -Asian stocks ended mixed on Wednesday, with Chinese and Hong Kong markets rallying on reports that Chinese authorities are preparing a package of measure to support the country's stock market. The dollar traded higher in Asian trading ahead of U.S. growth and inflation data due later in the week, while oil seesawed between modest falls and gains. China's Shanghai Composite index climbed 1.80 percent to 2,820.77 as the country's regulator removed proposed gaming rules from its website in a surprising move. Hong Kong's index jumped 3.56 percent.

European, (Reuters) -European stocks advanced on Wednesday after China's central bank announced that it would cut the amount of cash that banks must hold as reserves by 50 basis points from February 5 for the first time this year to help the economy. Also, media reports suggest that authorities are considering a package of measures to stabilize China's slumping stock market. Investors also digested the latest business activity readings from the region.

NEW YORK (Reuters) -The latest earnings results might be influencing the market trends on Wednesday. Early signs from the U.S. Futures Index suggest that Wall Street might open significantly up. Asian shares finished mostly up, while European shares are trading positive. As of 7.35 am ET, the Dow futures were up 82.00 points, the S&P 500 futures were adding 21.25 points and the Nasdaq 100 futures were progressing 128.75 points. Tuesday's session narrowly mixed.
